

This report is about the status of the Baksan Large Neutrino Telescope project. This detector will be one of the most sensitive liquid scintillation neutrino detectors in the world. This report describes the R&D of the first completed prototype with a target mass of 0.5 tons and the work on the second prototype with a mass of 5 tons.